

The Illustrator

Popy Matigot Popy has always loved stories. The ones she was told. Or that she invented in turn. She is now a graduate of the University of Art and Design (HEAD) in Geneva. At the age of 23, she discovered the profession of illustrator. Through a colorful and poetic universe, she tries to make the spectator or the reader travel in imaginary worlds which are moving and funny at the same time.

The Author

Sandra Le Guen studied Modern Literature. She writes her columns and stories at night. During her day job, she writes important texts for the most part, a note pad and pencil never out of her reach. She has devoured books from a very young age. Her reading experiences are at the heart of her blog Maman Baobab, which concerns itself with children's and young adult books and parenting. She has published children's books since 2016.

- Topics: Adventure, dreams, curiosity, surpassing yourself
- Charming and melodious in both text and illustrations

POPY MATIGOT & SANDRA LE GUEN

On the Horizon

Moon lived at the edge of the water, alone in a charming small house surrounded by a pretty garden. Vegetables and fruits, flowers and bushes: It was brimming with colours and flavours throughout the seasons ...

What Moon loves most of all is making soap bubbles that travel towards the horizon for her. ... But what is there at the horizon?

REVIEWS

"It's a picture book that puts nature into the spotlight. The garden, the sea, plants, animals, the sky, this is the setting offered by the beautiful illustrations by Popy Matigot. The sparkling soft colours, simple shapes are a real pleasure for the eyes!" - www.litteraturejeunesse.fr

"The illustrations by Popy Matigot carry the story beautifully. ... The layout and the changes in perspective as well as the clean composition add to the refined elegance of this picture book." - www.baladeenpage.com
