

The Author

Andrea Poßberg was born in the Rhineland. She studied geography, sociology and politics in Düsseldorf. Her first German teacher, who was capable of getting excited by stories such as “Violetta the flying girl from Mars”, awakened her passion for language. She lives in Grevenbroich with her husband and their three children.

The Illustrator

Corinna Böckmann was born in 1968 and started working for an advertising agency at the age of 16 until she took off on her own as a freelance graphic artist and illustrator herself. She has three children and lives near Cologne with her family and dog.

The Wild House of Animals— The Drama Lama

When guinea pig Maffi drops from the removals van—cage and all—her world falls apart. No food, no home, cars everywhere— where should she go? Utterly exhausted, she seeks refuge in an empty house.

But this isn't any old house—it is the Wild House! All sorts of different wild animals live here, who regularly run special errands for the Wild House. This time, they are to take a circus Lama back home. The field team, “A—Team” for short, with stag Hannibal, lynx Lino and owl Elvira set off with Maffi in tow. But lama Loretta has vastly different and obstinate ideas and knife thrower Zorg also gets in the way of the A-Team's mission ....

REVIEWS

“A wonderful start to this series for self-readers and listeners, with heart, wit and thrill combined in an exciting mix.” - Buchhandlung für ausgesuchte Literatur

Ulrich Klinger

“Funny adventures from the animals' perspective, for children who can just about master their own little novel.” - Eselsohr 9/2018, Maren Bonacker

“A nice book for pet lovers, with an exciting mission and a lot of humour.” - Familienbücherei

“A little exciting, at times thrilling, but not too much, and funny. Thus a great mix that makes children curious and encourages them to read on.” - Kinderohren-Blog
