

The Author

Annette Herzog, born in 1960, lives in Copenhagen. She writes in Danish and German. Many of her stories are broadcast as part of the children's radio play series Ohrenbär on various radio stations—this also goes for Mumpf and snowy owl.

www.annetteherzog.com

The Illustrators:

Ingrid & Dieter Schubert have been making picture books together for more than 30 years. They moved to Amsterdam on a scholarship in 1980 and have stayed there ever since. This is why most of their books are published in Dutch first and are then translated in many other countries, just like Irma hat so große Füße (Irma Has Such Big Feet).

- Topics: letters, friendship, travel, departure, longing
- Magical stories about friendship, beautifully illustrated

ANNETTE HERZOG
& INGRID AND DIETER SCHUBERT

Tomorrow is the Day, Says the Mumpf

The summer of missing the snowy owl!

Twenty-seven: that's the number of letters that the Mumpf sent to his best friend, the snowy owl! For she traveled to the north because there is winter, even in summer. But then one day, the Mumpf discovers that his homemade mailbox in the forest is never emptied. The snowy owl did not receive a single one of his letters – won't she think he forgot about her?

The Mumpf decides to deliver the letters by hand. But a trip requires preparation, packing, and most of all, saying goodbye to everyone: to the summery Mumpf forest, to the old mole, who wanted so badly to go with him, and to the friendly stoats. Not easy, the Mumpf realizes. And dangerous, too, remarks the mole. For what if the Mumpf encounters a Mumpf eater on his journey?

Original title: Morgen geht's los, sagt der Mumpf
Publisher: Moritz Verlag
Format: hc | 190 x 240 mm
Extent: 72 pp
Publication: Febr2018
Age: 5+ | RRP: € 14.95

Rights sold: Dutch

Also available:
Springtime
 With a Friend

Rights sold: Dutch

STORY-BOOK

Contact: anja@mundtagency.com