

Publisher: Südpol Verlag
Format: hc | 148 x 205 mm
Extent: 92 pages
 with 38 b&w illustrations
Publication: December 2011
Age: 7+

Rights sold: Italian, Turkish

For further information contact:
 anja@mundtagency.com

The Author:

Ina Krabbe was born in Bremen in 1967. She studied history, philosophy, economics and architecture and worked in a book shop and a PR agency before she started doing what she had always liked best. drawing and writing.. She lives and works in a small village near Bremen with her wife, children and three chickens. !

INA KRABBE

Titus Rattlebag

The Trojan Smelly Ball and the Underwater-Telescope

It is rather special that Titus has two mothers. Not many can say that of themselves. And it may also be something special that he has a cat called goalkeeper. But the really special thing about Titus is that he is an inventor.

An invention can be very handy when you happen to be stuck with a problem. Like the situation with the Trojan smelly ball. Titus invented that because Mr. Viper refused to give them back their footballs. And when Mr. Globe loses his lucky charm in the lake, Titus has his brilliant idea with the underwater-telescope. Incredible, what you can discover with that ...

REVIEWS

“A brilliant book—whether to read yourself or read out loud” - Westfalen-Blatt
 “The book gives young readers new (crazy!) ideas and stimulates the imagination” - his & her books

Sales points

- Suitable for young readers: funny illustrations and extra large writing
- 2 stories surrounding funny inventions—not just entertaining for boys!
- Also suitable to read-aloud (5+)