

When Line Can't Sleep at Night

Friederike Dammermann

Whenever Line can't fall asleep at night, she needs her cuddly toys. But they are scattered all over her bedroom. So Line has to get out of bed and collect them one by one.

Every animal she finds tells her a story or an adventure experienced in a distant land. Bob the bear takes her on a trail through the Canadian woods, penguin Fridolin shows her the South Pole and elephant Erika takes her to Africa.

In the end, all eight animals are safely tucked up in bed and Line can finally fall asleep after wishing them all a good night.

Friederike Dammermann

Friederike Dammermann comes from Braunschweig. She studied Art and German in Hamburg and Bremen and was somehow also in New York, Paris and Nîmes at that time, if not at the same time. She has been working as a teacher in the Baltic Sea town of Flensburg since 2002. When not at school, her focus is on painting - mostly with acrylic - and illustration. She has always had a soft spot for stories with children and animals and she is particularly knowledgeable about tigers and bears.
