The family on the 3rd floor, staircase H, apartment 1, won the lottery. The lucky ones! Now they will never have problems again. Or will they?

Suddenly they discover that money can make you happy – or not, but it sure does make life more difficult. An amusing story, written from the little girl’s point of view, who is much surprised by everyone’s reaction: her family’s, the neighbours’, the friends’.

Pere Comellas teaches Portuguese and also works as a translator. In 2005 he won the Giovanni Pontiero de Traducció, awarded by the University of Barcelona and the Institute Camões. He loves languages, especially those that are barely spoken any more, and thus works with a study group about dying languages.

Teresa Martí studied stage design at the Institute of Theatre in Barcelona. When working in a school, she discovered her passion for drawing and began to illustrate children’s books. She also works as an illustrator for journals and magazines.
